DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-3, 8, 11-15, 20, 23-25, and 30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Shtivelman et al. (U.S. Patent 6,263,066).

Regarding claims 1, 3, 13, 15, 23, and 25, Shtivelman et al. teach a method of maintaining real-time data ("for example, live calls") for multi-channel ("multimedia") communication queueing comprising: the call center receives all types of multimedia communication that can be queued, routed and and recorded in the same queue (Abstract and col. 4, lines 41-48 and col. 11, lines 30-40). Furthermore, Shtivelman et al. teach a database (Fig. 2, 43 and col. 11, lines 1-10).

Regarding claims 2, 14, and 24, Shtivelman et al. teach the data includes information related to the agent's skills (col. 3, line 29 through col. 4, line 4 and col. 10, lines 30-38).

Regarding claims 8, 20, and 30 Shtivelman et al. teach assigning a priority value to the media routes (Abstract).

Art Unit: 2642

Claims 11 and 12 are rejected for the same reasons as discussed above with respect to claim 1. Furthermore, Shtivelman et al. teach computer instructions (col. 10, lines 22-30 - "software") to implement the method of these claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 4-7, 9, 10, 16-19, 21, 22, 26-29, 31, and 32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shtivelman et al. (U.S. Patent 6,263,066) in view of Ginsberg (U.S. Patent 6,064,730).

Regarding claims 4-6, 16-18, and 26-28, the claimed invention recites the language "at least one of..." and therefore only <sup>one</sup> is needed to be addressed. For example, compiling statistic of the media routes including at least one of: waiting time during a period, handling time during a period, number of abandon requests, longest waiting time, percentage of available agents..., the statistic of the media routes may only have waiting time during a period and not others. Furthermore, Shtivelman et al. do not teach compiling statistics for the media routes and a communication channel including waiting time.

Ginsberg teaches compiling statistical information such as waiting time, number of work items ("how long the agent's queue is"), and time spent handling a work item ("how fast the agent's queue is moving, etc.") (col. 2, lines 44-65).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the feature of compiling statistical information such as waiting time, number of work items, and time spent handling a work item, as taught by Ginsberg, in Shtivelman's system in order to have a better system that compiling other relevant statistical information and providing customer with a visual presentation of relevant statistical information such as waiting time, how long an agent's queue is, and how fast the agent's queue is moving.

Regarding claims 7, 19, and 29, Ginsberg teaches an interactive system providing customer with a visual presentation of relevant statistical information such as waiting time, how long an agent's queue is, and how fast the agent's queue is moving. In order to perform such the described function, for example, display statistical information in the interactive system, it would have been necessary to compile a journal for the mentioned above items.

Regarding claims 9, 10, 21, 22, 31, and 32, Shtivelman et al. do not teach setting a maximum number of queued items for the media routes and a time for escalating a work item. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the mentioned above feature into Shtivelman's system in order to better manage the call center.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Costantini et al. (U.S. Patent 5,506,898) teach expected wait time indication arrangement.
